Aims and Objectives

A Career Fair, organised by any Higher Education Institute in today's India without any exception focuses on seeking in internship and job opportunities for its students. Any such event helps the students to acquire information regarding the scenario of current job market, available internship or hiring opportunities according to their course and subject background. Most often these young minds possess a great deal of confusion pertaining to their skills, job opportunities, and decisions. All they need is to have the right guidance on the right time by the right person. A Career Fair precisely gives them this clarity of vision. An open first-hand interaction opportunity with the company representatives, coming from diverse employment sectors, assists them to understand the sector and post-wise skill and course requirements. The much-needed counselling for necessary skill upgradation to get a hiring call from a dream company is also attempted by these company representatives in such events.

This winter at the heart of Kolkata, one such event, UDAAN '24 is going to be organised by the Rani Birla Girls' College, at its premises on January 11, 2024 from 11.00am to 4.00pm. This event obviously aims at the above-mentioned quintessential aspects of any career fair besides holding upholding some distinctive features of its own. This Career Fair will put an end to the widely popular preconceived Indian notion that students doing professional courses or from science background only have all the lucrative career opportunities available at their doorsteps. This Career Fair aims at upholding the future scenario of women empowerment in West Bengal as the institute which is organising this, is a Higher Education Institute for girls only. These young women have many up-to-date potential skills to offer West Bengal's current job market other than being fitted in their traditional skill-role of nurturers and caregivers. However, this is only one of the many objectives of organising this event. The paramount target of this event is to create employment possibilities for students in general irrespective of gender.

Rani Birla Girls' College is all set to stage this programme in a hope to create wonderful experiences for the participating companies and Higher Education Institutes. The goal is to widen avenues of enrichment, engagement, and employment for all attending it.
